These seasoned helicopter pilots have been flying ranches for over 30 years. Predator control is a necessary tool in any successful Wildlife Management program. Predators are an integral part of an ecosystem and it is sometimes just as important to control their numbers as it is the deer population. Implementation of a predator control program can be an effective tool in protecting the deer and exotic herds on a ranch. Predators that can be controlled by aircraft are feral hogs, coyotes, bobcats and red fox.
